How to do a subject search in the catalog – books are assigned subject terms using a controlled vocabulary that describe the focus of the book. Let’s say that I want to find books about lateral thinking. A keyword search brings up thousands of books, many that are only tangentially about lateral thinking. If I do a subject search, I will get fewer books and all of them will be specifically about my topic. You can find subject terms in the book’s record in the catalog. Librarian Tip: Clicking on the related subject terms will bring up more books specifically about the topic.
